

Ah So

The Zen Master Hakuin was praised by his neighbors as one living a pure life.

A beautiful Japanese girl, whose parents owned a food store, lived near him. Suddenly, without warning, her parents discovered she was with child.

This made her parents very angry. She would not confess who the father was, but after much harassment at last named Hakuin.

In great anger the parents went to the master to confront him. “Ah so.” was all he would say.

After the child was born, it was brought to Hakuin. By this time he had lost his reputation, which did not trouble him, but he took very good care of the child. He obtained milk from his neighbors and everything else the little one needed.

A year later the little child’s mother could stand it no longer. She told her parents the truth — that the real father of the child was a young man who worked in the fish market.

At once the mother and father of the girl went to Hakuin to ask his forgiveness, to apologize at length and to get the child back again. Hakuin was willing.

In yielding the child all he said was, “Ah so.”

*From Zen Flesh Zen Bones
by Paul Reps & Nyogen Senzaki*